About the Book

Ready Room, Laura Flecha's debut book, tells a story through poetry that spans two decades, capturing joys such as raising children, being in love, and enjoying nature's beauty, as well as diving into hardships such as mental illness, abuse, divorce, cancer, and infertility. The collection is emotional and honest, taking the reader through the seasons of life, while offering others who share similar struggles a hand to hold. Ready Room bridges a gap between Eastern and Western thought and shares a healing path for those in need.

“Powerful, raw, touching, and relatable.”

About the Author

Laura Flecha lives in Maryland with her husband, two daughters, son, goldendoodle, chickens, and ducks. A few of her interests are gardening, running, and being a steward to Sugartree Farmette's Little Free Library. She attained her MA in Writing from Zanvyl Krieger School of Arts and Sciences at Johns Hopkins University. Laura's main passion in writing is poetry with a focus on women's issues and subjects that can be difficult to talk about. As she was brought up Tibetan Buddhist, her writing sometimes reflects Eastern concepts, though it always blends with Western thought and experiences. Laura's hope is that her writing brings comfort to those who may face similar challenges, and perhaps provide insight or a shared understanding of human nature.
