The image shows a screenshot of a web application's 'Your delivery preferences' dialog box. The dialog has a light gray header with the title 'Your delivery preferences' and a close button (X) in the top right corner. Below the header, the 'Observed Holidays' section is expanded, indicated by an upward-pointing chevron icon. This section contains a text instruction: 'Select the federal holidays on which you cannot accept deliveries. If a holiday falls on Saturday or Sunday, we will not deliver on that day as well as preceding Friday or following Monday, respectively.' Below this instruction is a list of 13 federal holidays, each with a checkbox. The first checkbox, 'Select all', is unchecked. The remaining 12 checkboxes are checked, indicating that all listed federal holidays are selected for no delivery. At the bottom of the dialog, there is a section titled 'Custom holidays for this address' with the subtext 'Each custom holiday is up to 7 days'. At the very bottom right, there are two buttons: a 'Cancel' button with a gray border and a 'Save' button with a solid yellow background.
